THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

FRANK: "Would you mind repeating those percentages again, Judge... they're very interesting to me."

OLD JUDGE: "Certainly, Frank. Men who have made a study of drinking report that 93% of those who drink, drink sensibly, 5% drink excessively at times. And included in that 5% is the small percentage of drinkers known as alcoholics."

FRANK: "And what was that about alcoholics being sick people?"

OLD JUDGE: "That is what scientific research disclosed. In other words, it was found that, in most cases, it was not a craving for alcohol that made people drink to excess. Alcoholics were found to be suffering from some deep-rooted mental, physical or emotional condition. If they hadn't turned to alcohol for escape, they would have turned to something else."

FRANK: "I am glad to learn about that enlightened viewpoint, Judge. I can see it is possible to cure so many of these folks today... now the real cause is known."
